To whom it may concern

To support our business strategy of providing human resources administration and consulting services to small and medium size companies, Premier Technologies required a Human Resources Management System (HRMS) which could support our clients with the flexibility necessary to support their individual requirements. Given our focus on the small to medium target markets, we likewise needed an overall system configuration that could support multiple clients but at a cost that could easily be justified based upon the value being provided by our HR consulting practice – both services and software.

Premier Technologies chose the Knovada Human Resources Management System to support our HR business strategy due to the following factors:

- The Knovada HRMS could provide the option for both a single company and a multi-company system configuration.
- Through the deployment of the HRMS on the Knovada Application Server, there was no requirement to purchase hardware, associated operating system software nor was there a need to assign any IT resources to support the installation, implementation or operation of the HRMS.
- Being a fully web-enabled system, the HRMS was ideally suited for single clients with multiple locations or multiple clients in single/multiple locations.
- The HRMS is configured in a manner which provided the staff of Premier Technologies the ability to administer the system framework for each client based upon their specific requirements while providing local support for the end-users and their utilization of the system.

The robust features of the HRMS together with the excellent software support provided by Knovada was such that Premier Technologies chose to deploy the Knovada HRMS to support our own internal HR functions; actually residing on the same server configuration as one of our clients but with each having their own configuration options available to support their unique HR policies and procedures.

Yours sincerely,
